

Use this helpful guide from the RAC to track the progress the UK is making as we head towards 2030, with easy-read charts and graphics to help you make sense of the numbers.

Based on consultation feedback, the Government plans to reinstate the phase-out of new pure combustion engine cars from 2030. In the October 2024 Budget, it was decided to support the ...

OverviewStatisticsGovernment supportField testing programmesCharging infrastructureSalesSee alsoExternal linksThe adoption of plug-in electric vehicles in the United Kingdom is actively supported by the British government through the plug-in car and van grants schemes and other incentives. About 745,000 light-duty plug-in electric vehicles had been registered in the UK up until December 2021, consisting of 395,000 all-electric vehicles and 350,000 plug-in hybri...

This article explores the current state of Britain's electric vehicle revolution and what it means for drivers today.

The adoption of plug-in electric vehicles in the United Kingdom is actively supported by the British government through the plug-in car and van grants schemes and other incentives.

Barriers (real and perceived) to electric vehicle adoption could be significantly reduced at minimal cost to the UK Government, allowing the nation to move closer to its 2030 zero-emissions ...

The AA's new UK EV Readiness Index is out, and the score is just 47.5/100. High costs & charging hurdles are major concerns, showing the UK has "some way to go" before mass ...

Find the most up-to-date statistics about the electric vehicle market in the United Kingdom

The UK continues to make significant strides in electric vehicle (EV) adoption, climbing to fifth place out of 13 European countries in PwC's 2025 eReadiness survey.

According to a McKinsey study (2020), the UK has an EV index of 2.1 for BEV adoption (using a 5-point scale with 5 as the maximum), compared with 4.1 in Norway which has the highest ...

In the United Kingdom, the new car market experienced a modest expansion in 2024, with total registrations reaching just over 1.95 million units. Battery electric vehicles, or BEVs, were a...

Electric vehicle adoption united kingdom

Web: <https://kopbeenskloof.co.za>

